The problem in this case is that the water level in the fountain is too low, which affects the display and operation of the fountain. The solution is to increase the water level in the fountain. This can be done by adjusting the water pump or by adding more water to the fountain. Once the water level is adjusted, the fountain will operate normally and the display will be restored.