Respect Breeding Areas and Birds

You can respect seabirds by staying 300 feet away in a boat. If you are in an airplane, then stay 1000 above. If there are any nervous looking birds, loud squaking, or other disturbance signs, you are too close. Littering can also cause disturbance. If the birds are healthy you can be healthy because you live in the same habitat.

By: Bryce Keeton

Posters Created by 4th and 5th graders from San Francisco, CA in the SEA Program

The SEA, or Seabird Education Awareness, Program is led by PRBO Conservation Science in Partnership with the Farallones Marine Sanctuary Association and the National Park Service and supports PRBO’s mission to conserve birds, other wildlife and their habitats through science and outreach.